Inspire to volunteer!

Get to know volunteer agencies and the bagfa!

Volunteer agencies

Volunteer Agencies support all who want to get involved. They help volunteers to find the project that suits them best. They advise and accompany organizations, administrations and companies on working with volunteers and help them to create the infrastructure required. Being well-connected experts on the ground, they are able to identify current needs and challenges to develop new areas of activity or to set up new projects.

The bagfa - A strong community

The Federal Association of Volunteer Agencies (bagfa) is a registered society and acts as both an umbrella organization and a professional association, promoting and empowering volunteer agencies around the country. Established in 1999, bagfa now has over 200 members.

Our aim is to generate greater awareness for and appreciation of the achievements of volunteer agencies, as well as to improve their operating conditions. We represent the interests of volunteer agencies on the federal level and take a stance on current developments around volunteering and citizens' involvement.

We advise volunteer agencies in professional matters, produce information and work material, organize trainings and support quality development in volunteering with our own quality management system. Agencies which fulfil the requirements of quality are granted a seal of quality by bagfa. We promote exchange, cooperation and project transfer between volunteer agencies. Together, we develop new areas of activity and new projects.
